access-log

LexiConn provides the raw log files for each account, as well as many options for tracking hits, accesses, referrers, and more. A symbolic link to your raw log file is located in your home directory named access-log. This file can be quite large, so we do not recommend trying to view it. However, you could download it to your computer for use with an access log program.

We also offer 4 programs that display graphical results of all your hits and an easy to read, comprehensive breakdown of all the traffic to your website.

Raw logfiles are zipped up at the end of each week, and are saved for one month after that. If you have Urchin installed, the logs are moved out of your home directory each week. Contact us if you need to access these past logs.
